MEMORANDUM FOR THE PRESIDENT

FROM: James T. McIntyre, Jr. J. McIntyre

SUBJECT: Status Report On Regulatory Reform Issues

In the past two days we have made important progress on two of the Administration's regulatory reform initiatives - the Small Business Regulatory Flexibility Bill and the Paperwork Bill.

For months, the Administration has been concerned about the potential threat posed by the Regulatory Flexibility Bill. While it was one of the major recommendations of the White House Conference on Small Business and has been a very high priority of the small business community, early versions of the bill which passed committees in both Houses were wholly unacceptable. After weeks of behind the scenes negotiations, we reached agreement on Monday on a compromise bill that all parties have accepted. The bill passed the Senate this morning and should pass the House as soon as they return from the recess.

The compromise requires that agencies do an analysis of all proposed rules that will have a substantial adverse impact on small businesses and, where possible, tailor their regulations so as to minimize any adverse effects.

The second initiative is the Paperwork Bill - which passed the Senate Governmental Affairs Committee yesterday. As you may recall, this bill passed the House in March by a vote of 328-13. However, it has been held up in the Senate for months because of objections raised by the Defense Department about provisions concerning OMB oversight over the procurement of telecommunications equipment (covered by the Brooks Act). Despite the compromise that we negotiated last week with Harold Brown and Stansfield Turner, the prospects for Senate passage remain in doubt because elements of the Defense Department continue to lobby on the Hill against it. Partly as a result of this lobbying, Senator Jackson announced yesterday that he intends to offer further amendments on the floor.

Based on Senator Jackson's statements in recent days, it appears that he believes that the Paperwork Bill can be used as leverage to limit the coverage of the Brooks Act insofar as defense-related computer acquisition is concerned. As you might expect, Congressman Brooks has just the opposite view. If these differences are not resolved soon, the Paperwork Bill is likely to become a casualty. You should be aware that Chairman Brooks is very upset by DOD's continued lobbying and may call you to express his displeasure. I will continue to stay on top of this situation.

Your major Regulatory Reform Bill remains in difficulty because we cannot see any route to passage without an unacceptable form of legislative veto being added to the bill. But the passage of the Paperwork and Regulatory Flexibility Act Bills, coupled with our other administrative actions and airline and trucking deregulation, will create a regulatory reform program that can be cited as a major accomplishment during our first four years.

MEMORANDUM FOR: THE PRESIDENT
FROM: HENRY OWEN <sup>10</sup>
SUBJECT: Steel Anti-Dumping Suit

Discussions have been going on between Under Secretary of Commerce Hertzstein and U.S. Steel, to see under what conditions U.S. Steel would withdraw its anti-dumping suit. These conversations are usual at this stage of an anti-dumping suit; Hertzstein made clear that he had no authority to enter into negotiations about U.S. policy changes.

On the basis of these talks, we can now define the parameters within which an agreement might be reached between the government and the steel industry that would lead to withdrawal of the anti-dumping suits. We will now analyze the inflationary and other implications of alternative options within these parameters and then present you with a paper defining these options, as you requested after your meeting with Jenkins in Venice.

This would make it possible for you to reach decisions as to whether to go forward with any of these options before mid-September, i.e., before the disruptions in U.S.-European trade of which Jenkins warned.

Commerce, STR, CEA, State, Treasury, and DPS will be involved in preparation of the options paper referred to above.

MEMORANDUM FOR: THE PRESIDENT

FROM: HENRY OWEN ~~GO~~

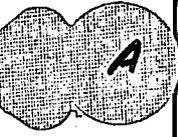

SUBJECT: Letter from Bob McNamara

Bob McNamara assures you (Tab A) that the World Bank is off and running on fulfilling the Venice Summit charges to the Bank. I can confirm this. I meet regularly with him and his staff; they are following up on initiatives to carry out the Summit decisions on helping LDCs produce more food and energy.

He also thanks you for the strong support that your Administration has given the Bank and its soft-loan affiliate, IDA. As more evidence to this effect, I will tell him of your planned meetings with congressional leaders toward the end of this month, and with public support groups early next month, to get good congressional votes on the aid bill.

No reply to his letter is necessary.

P.S. This is an important area in which you have gotten less public credit than you deserve: US appropriations for the multilateral banks increased from $695.6 million in FY 1976 to $2,514.9 million in FY 1979. There is no precedent for such an increase in recent decades. You said in the 1976 campaign that you would strongly support multilateral aid, and the results are evident.

Dear Mr. President:

The Executive Directors, the staff, and all of us here at the World Bank have followed with close attention the deliberations of the recent Venice Economic Summit meeting. We are particularly grateful for its strong support of the Bank's general capital increase and the Sixth Replenishment of the International Development Association.

We are currently examining how we can most effectively assist our oil-importing developing member countries to expand the exploration, development, and production of both their conventional and renewable domestic energy resources, including the possibility -- as the Summit meeting indicated -- of establishing a new affiliate for this purpose.

I want to take this opportunity, Mr. President, to thank you personally for the continuing support your Administration has given the Bank and IDA. Your Secretaries of State and Treasury have worked hard to overcome the deficit on the IDA account, and to strengthen the effectiveness of the entire World Bank Group. I have at times called for stronger official development assistance performance by the United States, but I recognize and admire your strong personal commitment to that same goal.

With my appreciation, and every best wish, I am,

Respectfully,

Robert S. McNamara
